Qwatro Corporation has announced that it is the first North American chemical company to receive the prestigious EcoLogo™ (Environmental Choice Program– Environment Canada) Certification

Toronto, ON - (March 4, 2005) Qwatro Corporation a leading manufacturer of environmentally friendly sanitation and industrial maintenance products has announced that it is the first North American chemical company to receive the prestigious EcoLogo™ certification (Environmental Choice Program) for their all purpose biological cleaning and odor control product (Qwest), biological drain and grease trap products (Biozyme and BioBac 7). The Environmental Choice™ Program is Canada's only national and comprehensive eco-labeling program.

According to Executive VP Janet Wells: "This is an extremely significant milestone for Qwatro and our customers in the U.S. and Canada. The EcoLogo™ standards for biological cleaning and odor control products are the highest in North America. We are very pleased to see that Qwatro was able to pass the test."

"We developed these biological cleaning and odor control products in order to meet the most stringent criteria available for performance and safety. These new biological products are safer to use, better for the environment and perform better than traditional chemical cleaners. Our EcoLogo™ Certification means that an independent third party that is monitored by the federal government has confirmed what we have known all along. This new biological technology is truly revolutionary and we are proud that Qwatro is a pioneer in this field," said Bob Wagner, President – Qwatro.

Biological cleaning and odor control products use approved micro-organisms that clean by producing enzymes that break apart organic matter and convert organic matter into water and carbon dioxide. Once the organic matter is gone, the micro organisms deactivate.

Qwatro's biological cleaning and odour control products are sold throughout North America and Europe to the food service and Institutional cleaning market.
